Topic 1: What are SRS protest requests

What are SRS protest requests

On January 7, 2019, a new online process has been released which gives our Raytheon Suppliers the opportunity to formally protest performance elements affecting their Supplier Rating System (SRS) ratings. The feature enables our suppliers to submit protest requests for statistical delivery date, receipt date, or failure responsibility through SRS via the Raytheon Supplier Portal.

Benefits:

- Raytheon Supply Chain Productivity
 - Buyers will have time to do more productive supplier management activities
 - Will enhance supplier excellence program by removing the need to adjudicate SRS scores to reflect accurate performance
 - Will improve competitive source selection decisions by utilizing more accurate data

- Improved Partnership
 - Addresses consistent feedback from supplier perception surveys; Suppliers requested a formal process to contact RTN to update inaccurate SRS scores.
 - This is a feature that, in the words of suppliers from the Raytheon Supplier Advisory Council, “Will be a competitive differentiator for Raytheon”.

SRS Protest Requests - Key Assumptions

- SRS protest requests are for supplier performance relationship reports (SPRR)
 - Protests can occur from PO Detail, Receipt Detail, or Failure Detail reports in SPRR (protests cannot occur from the SCAR Detail report or QDI's)

- The SRS protest requests from PO Detail, Receipt Detail, and Failure Detail reports will route to the buyer on record

- Only one protest request per line item is allowed
 - Once a supplier submits a protest request for a line item, regardless if it is accepted or rejected, the line item cannot be protested again

SRS Protest Request Status Definitions

Protest Request Status	Definition
Submitted	The supplier SRS protest request has been submitted to Raytheon for review.
In Review	The supplier SRS protest request is in review by Raytheon.
Accepted	The supplier SRS protest request has been accepted by Raytheon for processing. Raytheon will update the appropriate data source system. Changes should be reflected in SRS ratings in the next SRS update.
Rejected	The supplier SRS protest request has not been accepted by Raytheon. Although the SRS protest request to change SRS was reviewed thoroughly, the request will not be acted upon.

Topic 6: Frequently Asked Questions

Frequently Asked Questions

- Q: I submitted a protest request. When can I expect to receive resolution of the protest request from Raytheon?

A: Once the buyer receives the supporting documentation, the information will be reviewed. Open protest requests will follow internal escalation procedures for timely responses. Please note that the resolution may not be immediately reflected in SRS data due to timing of SRS updates.

- Q: Will my protest request become public knowledge?

A: No, the protest request records are maintained in a database to which only Raytheon and the respective Supplier have access.

- Q: How do I check the status of a protest request?

A: Suppliers can check the status of a protest request by viewing the PO, Receipt, or Failure detail reports where suppliers initiated the protest request (reports accessed via the SPRR). See topic 3. Once a resolution is determined, an email will be sent to both the supplier and the buyer.

Frequently Asked Questions

- Q: Why am I unable to protest a line item more than once?

A: Once a protest request has been resolved, the buyer has completed any necessary investigation and has determined the final resolution. Once final resolution has been determined, the item cannot be protested again.

- Q: My protest request was accepted, but SRS is not reflecting the update. What do I do?

A: If SRS has not been updated after the protest request was accepted, please contact the buyer. If further assistance is needed, contact the Raytheon helpdesk 877-844-4712.
