

B.J. Boling

Executive Director,
Communications

B.J. Boling leads communications at Raytheon, an RTX business that specializes in integrated air and missile defense, advanced sensors, space systems, hypersonics, effectors and cyber solutions. In this role, he oversees Raytheon communications strategy, including the development and execution of integrated communications campaigns to best position the business with customers, employees and external partners.

Boling previously served as executive director of Business Communications & Analysis for Raytheon Intelligence & Space as well as director of Business Communications for Raytheon Space and Airborne Systems prior to Raytheon Company's merger with United Technologies Corporation in 2020.

Prior to joining Raytheon, Boling held various programmatic communications positions with Lockheed Martin. Before joining the aerospace and defense industry in 2010, he held numerous positions in political campaign organizations, most notably serving as South Carolina state communications director for McCain for President 2008.

Boling earned a bachelor's degree in political science from Clemson University and is a graduate of Raytheon's Leadership Excellence and Accelerating Leadership Impact programs.